Laurel Keeps Slight Lead Over Quirino

Manila, Nov. 9.—The Nacionalista presidential candidate, Jose Laurel, kept a slight lead over President Quirino on the basis of nearly complete returns from Manila and fragmentary reports from the provinces in yesterday's elections.

The former Senate President, Jose Avelino, who is backed by his own faction of the split Liberal Party, appeared a poor third in the violence-marred, first presidential election in the three-year-old republic. At least 29 deaths due to election violence have been reported.

THE General Council of the Trades

L Union Congress meets today in London for discussions which have an important bearing on the Government's plan for Britain's economic recovery.

The Council is meeting to consider the report of its special economic committee, which last week reached a grave decision.

After weeks of anxious consideration, the committee decided to roject a plan which would have meant an almost complete standstill in wages-including suspension of the agreements under which the wages of about 1,500,000 workers are tied to the standard of living-for a limited period. The economic crisis which led to devaluation imposed heavy responsibl-lities on Britain's trade unions, For years trade union leaders have had the difficult task of culling upon their members to exercise restraint in wage claims which, although it might seem a contradiction of the essential aims of trade unionism, was nevertheless in the workers' own interests. Their task was made a little easier by the fact that the cost of living was comparatively stable.

But devaluation changed even that by making it obvious that Britain was living beyond her means and that the cost of living was sure to rise. The trade union leaders understand that if devaluation is to achieve its nims, wage restraint is more important than ever. But they have apparently been unable to convince the SECRET OF RISE TO POWER IN

New York, Nov. 8.—The new political complexion in China brought about by the victories of the Chinese Communist armies makes it vital that the U.S. reform its policies towards all Asia along more cultural, economic and social paths to reach the deeper roots of the Asian peoples.

"Lacking these ingredients, a military effort is likely to fail, leaving us in an even worse position than before," he said.

duce an additional complication: whife these unions refuse to accept the suspension of these agreements, their wages rise with the cost of living, and, it is obviously difficult to persuade other unions to restrain their claims. The plan which the economic committee considered last week was probably the most courageous ever proposed by trade unionists. It was rejected mainly because the leaders of unions with sliding scale agreements said that they would be completely unable to persuade their members to forgo them. Other critics said that the plan would split the union movement and perhaps even destroy it. That the trade union leaders were unwilling to face this bold course is both regrettable and disquieting. Only the trade unions can pave the way for the all-out effort which is needed if Britain's industry is to achieve the increased production and lower costs recognised as essential to recovery. The General Council today has an opportunity to retrieve the position to some extent. No doubt it will continue to press for restraint in wage claims-of which there have - recently been a disconcerting good deal to say about the need for increased productivity. But something more is needed. The TUC must ac quickly and resolutely to find a policy suited to the needs of the hour. How-

NEWSPAPERS ASSIST IN SELECTING ENGLAND'S SOCCER TEAMS

By PETER DITTON.

Unbiased, undaunted and usually unpraised, the English selectors meet regularly at least four times a year to select English International soccer teams for matches against other countries.

Whatever combination they finally, decide upon will certainly be 'riewed with a critical eye by soccer fans, all over the country who have got their own ideas that so-and-so would make a much better inside-right than the player selected.

Indeed, if Mr Everyman were allowed to have his say in the selection of the English International team the result would almost certainly be unusual, not to say disastrous, from a playing point of view. Every soccer fan has his own particular favourite, playing for his own particular club and these players, while they might be good club-men, could never be classed as International prospects when viewed with an experienced eye. .

This Difficult Hand Has a Fine Point

BY WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY

ONCE in a while I find a hand U that is very good and yet so technical that it is almost impossible to get it all in one article. Today's hand in an example, I have tried writing it several times, but have had to give it up, as the article became either too long or too confueing. Today however, I am not going to try to clarify it. I think it is a great hand and has a fine point in it also,

The declarer who made the contract was Tobias Stone, one of the keenest analysts of hands that I know.
